Introduction

The League of Nations founded in 1920 on initiative of Woodrow Wilson, the president of the US could not avert the Second World War. A serious effort was, therefore, made by some nations to replace it. On 26th June, 1945, the representatives of fifty countries met in San Francisco and signed the charter of the UN. Officially the world organization came into being on 24th October, 1945; this day is celebrated every year as the UN Day. It has now 189 members, and its headquarters is in New York. The UN Charter is a noble document. There are several organs through which the UN functions, but the most important are the General Assembly and the Security Council. The General Assembly is almost like a 'World Parliament.' It is the deliberative organ of the UN where each member-nation has one vote. The Assembly holds its regular session every year from mid-September to mid-December. Council has fifteen members of which China, France, Russia, and the United Kingdom and the United States of America are permanent members.....
